Foot Bath Ion Cleanse Systems

Our bodies have a variety of ways of removing harmful toxic substances from our bodies. Yes,....we may all be aware that our kidneys, liver, lungs, and digestive tract are routes that can remove such chemicals, but few think about another mechanism, our skin.

Our skin serves as an organ of detoxification with our feet being the place that offers the best place for these toxins to be removed. As a result, manufactures of detoxifying equipment are capitalizing on this property and making devices to help remove toxic chemicals through the pores in one's feet. To aide in this removal process, ionization helps the body better mobilize these chemicals and remove them efficiently.

While there are a variety of ionic foot cleanse units on the market, few are made to quality standards. I researched and personally tested other units and did my due diligence. Based on all that I learned, the unit I decided on purchasing was the IonCleanse Premier by A Major Difference, Inc. I have been extremely satisfied with the system and with the support available at AMD.

The IonCleanse Units made by A Major Difference are fine quality units that offers all of the most important parameters that a consumer would wish to have. They include a solid warranty of 3 or 5 years, made in the USA of quality parts rather than cheap Far East components, powered by electricity rather than unreliable expensive batteries that have to be replaced, certified by both the FCC (Federal Communications Commission) and CE (European Conformity) for electrical safety, instructions that are easy to follow, and a US company that's been in business for over 10 years that has a reputation of superiority in this industry.

When embarking on any new therapy such as using an Ion Cleanse unit, it's important to be under the supervision of a health care professional. There are medical conditions that should be considered before using any Ion Cleanse unit. And it's also important to understand that any time minerals are being removed from the body, there may be an increased requirement for replacement. A Major Difference has this information clearly spelled out in their manual for users and professionals alike as to minimize any potential consequences.

Most people will experience an overall feeling of better health and increased energy. And when using an IonCleanse Unit made by A Major Difference, the customer can count on owning a product that's supported for years by a fine manufacturer with a reputation of superiority.
